

Training Circular TC 04-71: Commander Aviation Maintenance Training Program - A Comprehensive Guide

Purpose and Scope

Training Circular TC 04-71, Commander Aviation Maintenance Training Program (CAMTP), provides guidance on the establishment, implementation, and management of the CAMTP. The CAMTP is a comprehensive program that ensures that aviation maintenance personnel are trained and qualified to perform their duties safely and effectively.

The CAMTP is applicable to all Army aviation units that perform aviation maintenance. This includes active duty, National Guard, and Reserve units. The CAMTP is also applicable to civilian contractors who perform aviation maintenance for the Army.

Key Components of the CAMTP

The CAMTP consists of the following key components:

- Training Plan: The training plan outlines the training requirements for all aviation maintenance personnel. The training plan is based on the maintenance tasks that are performed by the unit.
- Training Schedule: The training schedule specifies the dates and times of training events. The training schedule is based on the training plan and the availability of resources.
- Training Materials: The training materials include textbooks, manuals, and other resources that are used to train aviation maintenance personnel.
- Training Instructors: The training instructors are responsible for delivering the training. The training instructors must be qualified to teach the material.
- Training Evaluation: The training evaluation process assesses the effectiveness of the training. The training evaluation process includes written tests, performance tests, and observations.

Implementation of the CAMTP

The CAMTP is implemented by the unit commander. The unit commander is responsible for ensuring that the CAMTP is established, implemented, and managed in accordance with this circular.

The unit commander should appoint a training officer to oversee the implementation of the CAMTP. The training officer is responsible for developing the training plan, scheduling the training events, and acquiring the necessary resources.

Management of the CAMTP

The CAMTP is managed by the unit commander and the training officer. The unit commander is responsible for ensuring that the CAMTP is effectively managed and that aviation maintenance personnel are trained and qualified to perform their duties.

The training officer is responsible for the day-to-day management of the CAMTP. The training officer is responsible for scheduling the training events, acquiring the necessary resources, and evaluating the effectiveness of the training.

Training Circular TC 04-71 provides guidance on the establishment, implementation, and management of the Commander Aviation Maintenance Training Program (CAMTP).
